One man was killed and 14 persons were injured, two seriously last night when an automobile collided with a large passenger bus from Atlanta hurtling the bus down a 15-foot embankment near Lanett, Ala., across the Chattahoochee river from West Point, Ga.

The bus came to rest on its side. The automobile fell down the other side of the embankment, a bridge-end fill, about 20 or 30 feet from the wrecked bus.

The accident occurred when the passenger car sideswiped another car and was thrown into the path of the southbound bus, Lanett authorities said. The passenger car was traveling north.

Jesse Lasky Writes Those in Contest Will Feel Well Repaid.

By LILLIE MAY ROBINSON. "It is the intention of the 'Gateway to Hollywood" Committee that everyone entering the talent quest shall be given the utmost consideration and that those who attend the regional eliminations shall have had such a good time as to feel well repaid for their effort, whether or not they eventually get to Hollywood and, consequently, an RKO Radio picture contract," writes Jesse L. Lasky, Hollywood producer, through whose efforts young men and young women in Atlanta and surrounding territory are being given a wide-open chance to become screen personalities.

A nationwide search for new movie talent under the aegis of Jesse L. Lasky's "Gateway to Hollywood" is now under way. Its purpose is to afford the unknown, regardless of experience, an op-portunity to crash the well-barri-

Dr. Mell went on to describe the further revelations of God in the Bible in the person of Jesus Christ, His Son, the Saviour of the World, who came into the world to give Himself a ransom for sin that man might be reconciled unto the Father. He described the Holy Spirit as a further revelation of the divine inspiration of the Scrip-tures. He challenged the atheistic attitude of mind, which declares that nothing can be accepted as truth unless it can be intellectually understood and logically proved as absolutely untenable in any area of life—that there is no fact of life which can be fully understood or explained.

Not Least of Their Many Problems Is How To Pick Up a Hat.

Fashion's command for shorter dresses has resulted in an embarrassing situation for the girls. It's a case of fashion versus modesty. Long dresses look not only Robert, secretary of the Demounfashionable, but also stamps the cratic national executive commitwearer as being a back number. On the other hand, to wear the planned. short dress of the current styles strains a girl's modesty to the very nth degree. For instance - what happens the skirt in the back! The moral is to continue to wear the short dress, but don't lean over or down to pick up your hat. Better still, let the boy friend do it for you. Then another thing, when seat-ed, the new short skirts are bound to slip up and reveal plump, well-rounded knees. The only solution to this is to sit in a graceful man-ner to avoid the awarkness of the short skirt, or drop your bag and gloves in a casual manner over your knees, or just be indifferent and let the chiffon-covered limbs

Some of the girls have agreed to wear short skirts and remain standing as long as possible to avoid being caught short. Others say they will not drop anything, or if they do, they will just wait until some obliging male comes by. Nevertheless, it's a battle royal between fashion and modesty, and the girls say it will have no end, for one is useless without the makes of automobiles manufactur-

2 new miles of rural line 12 new rural customers 50 new rural users of electricity

EVERY WORKING DAY!

During the three years ending December 31, 1938, the Georgia Power Company built 1,804 miles of new rural electric lines, serving 10,770 new customers, practically all of them rural and farm residents who formerly had not had the advantages of electric service.

This means that an average of more than two miles of new rural line were built every working day during the past three years; that an average of 12 new rural customers were added every working day; and, conservatively, that an average of 50 Georgians who live in rural districts - men. women and children - every working day began to enjoy for the first time the priceless privilege of electric service in the home and on the farm.

... And That's Not All

These are the results of the last three years in a rural electrification program that began many years ago. Steady, consistent work at this important job has raised today's totals to-

4,192 miles of rural lines in this Company's system serving 48,690 rural consumers. And the work still goes forward!

In addition, we have worked hand in hand with REA cooperatives in extending electric service to still more Georgia farms.

For an electrified Georgia, we will build rural lines where we canand where we ourselves can't build, we will help others to build.

Vinson frowns on closed sessions, arguing reporters are certain to get the news anyway. A naval engineer told the committee there was no reason why a well-built hangar at Miami should collapse under a hurricane wind. Vinson put on his horn-rimmed spectacles, peered over them, and pointed to the witness.

"That's just the kind of an architect they have been looking for down there," he said. Once the committee decided the

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 20, 1939.

THIRTY-TWO YEARS OF SERVICE

Tuberculosis was once regarded as a scourge from which an appalling number of people were expected to go to premature death. It seemed an unavoidable fate, an inevitable ending for an ever increasing number, from which there was no escaping. But thanks to modern methods of treatment and the work of such splendid organizations as the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, which attained its 32nd anniversary on February 17, it now seems fair to assert the disease is being brought under control.

Tuberculosis has always taken its heaviest toll from among the undernourished poor. It has been these, naturally, who could not afford, or hesitated to seek, private treatment because of a lack of funds-even if they knew they were afflicted. It was to make early discovery possible and prescribe treatment that the clinics of the association were organized. Forty physicians, with the sanction of the local medical societies, contribute their services without charge. The hospitals, the health authorities have co-operated to the fullest extent.

As an indication of the scope of the work now being done, 1,440 clinics were held, serving 4,534 individuals in Fulton and DeKalb counties. in 1938. This service was followed with a total of 18,342 home visits by nurses affiliated with the organization. In 1907, the year the association was founded, only 20 patients were given Every modern device is now employed, not only in diagnosis and treatment, but in prevailing upon those who have the slightest symtoms of the disease to report to the clinics for examination. Motion pictures have been shown in rural communities. Thousands of leaflets have been distributed, urging the need for early examination, if treatments are to be effective. It has been the co-operative effort of all concerned which has brought success to this worthwhile undertaking. The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association has made full co-operation possible.

EARNING THAT ALLOWANCE

It is not to be doubted that the majority of mothers and fathers are inclined to make pocket money allowances to children flow a bit too freely. Boys and girls of middle and upper class families, as a rule, learn little or nothing about thrift, or the necessity for it, until they are thrown on their own, or have married and are forced to practice it to make budgetary ends

To become suddenly fugal, by force of necessity, without previous training for the task, is a difficult handicap to normal living. A feeling of resentment at such a lot in life sometimes develops. The easy way out, leading to disaster, is often sought. Not infrequently the tendency to blame society, in general, becomes apparent, because the things desired are not easily avail-

Many students of the subject contend that money allowances should never be given children unless some duty has been satisfatorily performed to justify it. This practice creates a feeling of responsibility. Money which comes "hard" isn't likely to go "easy." Farm boys, as a general thing, have to work for their spending money. They are taught, at once, that money doesn't grow on trees. Perhaps this early training in frugality, which comes of having to earn the money before it can be spent, has much to do with the high percentage of country boys making financial successes in the cities.

A story has been told recently of a mother and father of considerable means who went abroad, leaving their two sons in preparatory school. As a means of developing their thrifty side, the father presented each son with a shoeshining kit, the purpose being to save dimes by shining their own shoes. But the boys went one step further. If they could save dimes by shining their own shoes they could make dimes shining the shoes of other boys at the school. The parents of these boys may rest assured they will know more about the value of money than the average pampered son who paid to have his shoes polished. Thrift in the United States, for the moment, is spoken of more or less apologetically in some quarters. But it's a good bet it will be the thrifty who will continue to make their way in the future as in the past.

FREEING THE PRESS IN GERMANY

It is understood that Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of enlightenment, once remarked that two newspapers were ample for the third reich. Quite naturally the two will eventually be Der Fuehrer's "National Observer" and Goebbels' "Attack"-to use the more understandable translations.

Although Goebbels is said to have fallen into disfavor of late, he fitted action to words, so far as "freeing" the press is concerned, while at the height of his power. More than 1,000 non-Nazi newspapers have been forced out of business since January, 1933, due to pressure from the "proper" source. Pressure, in this case, was generated by a subsidy to all loyal Nazi papers and the removal of patronage, such as advertising, from the "disloval" or those which refused to knuckle down.

Under the one-man ukase all newspapers which could not make a profit without "patronage" in competition with the subsidized pressofficial party organs-have been forced to close, thereby releasing their employes for what is considered more valuable service. Soldiering, making guns, digging trenches and building forts are more important in Greater Germany than a free press.

Last week, in an attempt to hasten the achievement of reducing the nation's press to a controlled pair, 12 newspapers folded up permanently. The "Weiner Zeitung," 236 years old; the "Neue Freie Presse," once edited by the murdered Dollfuss; the "Berliner Tageblatt," one of Germany's greatest papers, and the "Kreuz-Zeitung," founded by Bismarck in 1848, were among the unlucky dozen.

Thus the German press is rapidly approaching that admirable state of "freedom"-to do anything it is told except print the news-so ardently desired by the minister of enlighten-

IMPORTANCE OF FIRE DRILLS.

The most important thing, the first essential in case of fire in a school, is to conduct the children, without danger of injury, to a place of safety. Hence the necessity of frequent fire

Fire drills may seem routine and, on occasion, even a waste of valuable time. But it is this very routine which, if the necessity arose, would make a quick exit possible without fear of panic. Constant drilling familiarizes the children with the location of exits, the exits they would use in case of fire. The emptying of the building thus becomes more or less mechanical, a valuable attainment at a time when thinking would become handicapped by fear and the natural desire to rush for the nearest escape.

No child should be assigned the duty of saving school property from possible destruction by fire. Material things are secondary. Salvaging property may well be left to the fire department, or such volunteer adults as may care to undertake it, after all the children have safely left the building.

Fire drills should never be permitted, by the principal of a school, to become slipshod affairs. If conducted properly and at frequent intervals a school building could easily be emptied, in case of actual fire, without the children becoming aware of the danger until after they had reached a place of safety.

A quick transmission of the alarm to the fire department must always be assured. For this purpose an alarm box in every school building should be one of the requirements of the board of firemasters

If there is any doubt in the minds of school authorities that a particular building could not be vacated with sufficient promptness in case of an emergency, consultation should be had at once with the fire department, so the doubt may be removed.

THE PALESTINE PARLEY (From The Washington Post.)

The parley on Palestine, which opened in London last week, rests on an assumption that the problem of bringing peace between Arab and Jew within the framework of the existing mandate is soluble.

It must not be assumed that the outlook for the conference, while admittedly far from good, is entirely hopeless. It is not. For one thing, the meeting is taking place at a moment of relative quiescence in Palestine. The strong measures recently taken by the British to put down terrorism and restore order have had their effect. And the presence at the conference not only of representatives of the Palestinian Arabs, but also Arab elements outside the Holy Land, notably Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Irak and Egypt, makes possible a broader base of discussions than the future of Palestine alone.

This latter circumstance offers one possible way out of a dilemma which has long plagued the British. They are bound by the terms of the Balfour declaration which promised the Jews a national homeland in Palestine. At the same time they find it difficult to ignore pressure from Arab Nationalists who want the Balfour declaration scrapped and Palestine turned over to the Arabs.

Now were it possible to create some kind of an Arab federation, the Arabs would be in possession of an autonomous area well in excess of 2,000,000 square miles, or three-quarters of the size of the United States, yet with a population of less than 12,000,000.

As part of an Arab federation, but with its autonomy secured so that the intent of the Balfour declaration could be carried out, Palestine could serve a double purpose. It could, in the first place, serve the needs of a vast and growing number of Jewish refugees to whom other doors are closed. And the fructifying effect of this flood of brains and brawn and capital to the Holy Land would be felt far beyond the bounds of Palestine.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

BY JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

G. O. P. POLITICIANS ANNOYED WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. As usual, the Republican politicians and the Republican prima donnas are split wide open—this time on foreign affairs. "Prima donnas" is the unloving term the politicians apply to men like Herbert Hoover, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, and the other leaders who seek to chart their party's course by frequent speeches. The politicians, who would much prefer to let time and opportunity do the course-charting, are currently annoyed by what they regard as a Hoover-Vandenberg effort to make the President's foreign policy into a party

It is difficult to doubt the politicians' interpretation of the activities of the former President and the Michigan senator. In his Lin-coln Day speech, Hoover remarked that "the third great mission of the Republican party is peace for America." of a sharp attack on the New Deal, and against the background of Hoover's previous denunciation of Roosevelt's foreign policy, the can have only one meaning. That meaning, in plain language, is that Hoover hopes his party will make an issue of President Roosevelt's supposedly warlike inclinations. Moreover, Hoover is reported to have said privately that such an issue would be politically helpful.

ACCUSING THE PRESIDENT The sincerity of Hoover's opinions on foreign policy is not questioned. He is, as usual, honestly and deeply convinced of the truth of what he says. The questionable aspect of his behavior, from the Republican politicians' viewpoint, is the effort to make the controversy over foreign policy something more than a mere controversy between the individual, Herbert Hoover, and the individual ual, Franklin Delano Roosevelt-to make it, in fact, into a controversy between the Republican and Democratic parties. The same

Vandenberg. Thus far, Vandenberg has not uttered at great length, but he is preparing to do so. His line is considerably more partisan than that of Hoover, who has merely warned of the danger of giving aid and comfort to either side in any foreign conflict. Vandenberg makes much of the "secrecy" of the President's dealings, talks of the "methods of dictatorship," and denounces the use of such agencies as the Export-Import bank for such deals as the Chinese loan. It's impossible to predict just how his thoughts will look when he gets them down on paper, but, as he is currently expressing them, they sound like a speech on "regimentation" from the 1936 campaign. There's no doubt, of course, that, if men like Hoover and Vandenberg can convince the electorate that the Republicans are a "peace party," while the Democrats are a "war party," they will get Heaven knows, no responsible man in America this country to go to war, or to become involved in war. What the politicians fear is that Hoover and Vandenberg may be playing with a buzz-saw. The President's foreign policy is founded on the theory that we should help our friends abroad, so long as we run no risk ourselves. He has not yet explained it clearly. But, as long as he can promise something for nothing, he has a strong argument in MIND-CHANGER Reports come in from everywhere that the President's curiously slick method of dealing with foreign problems has aroused much distrust. At the same time, it would seem that the new Republican leader, Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, has found the shrewdest approach. He is a complete isolationist, and yet he does not become stirred up by such incidents as the French airplane purchase. Remembering the something for nothing argument, he avoids indignation at helping our friends when it doesn't hurt us, and bases his attack, instead, on the President's unneutral habit of mind.

Taft should not be classed with the politicians, who are simple. practical men, fond of using whatever issue comes to hand, and sure that specific issues mean much less than the general state of feeling in the country. They just don't want to be committed, one way or another, until the time comes. The wisdom of their unwillingness is perhaps demonstrated by the strangely naive passage in Hoover's speech to the Council on Foreign Relations in Chicago. In it he said that he "did not believe" that women and children would be attacked "by deliberate destruction of cities from the air." added that such attacks would change his mind. But changing your mind in politics can be exceedingly uncomfortable.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Comes From NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—That which I am about to write may not be received as good news, out don't blame me because, after all, it comes from the Treasury Department.

Would you like to guess, or should I come straight to the point, that we now have a federal income tax on the earnings of mil-ions of toilers in the lowest brackets who think they are exempt be cause congress has said that they shall be and because they do not ave to puzzle over formal returns?

It is a surprise tucked away in the instruction sheet of the individual income tax return. The news is broken in this form: "Tax withheld or paid under section 801 of the Social Security Act for or in behalf of the employe is a federal income tax."

This means that the move to widen the base of the income tax has been accomplished quietly in another law, and if this statement of purpose were not enough to esthe fact there corroboration in the Social Securiy Act itself, where the deducation rom the employes' wages to pay their share of the security bill is frankly described as "income tax on employes.'

To 3 Per Cent come tax on individual earnings up to $3,000, amounting at present to one per cent but due to rise in jumps of one-half of one per cent until 1948, when it will be stabilized at three per cent of the gross earnings of each in-dividual up to $3,000.

It comes right off the top of the employe's earnings with no deductions or exemptions for dependents or anything else. And it applies to a piece of hog-side or a sack of meal or a room furnished for employe by the employer in lieu of cash money.

It claimed that this tax on the gross earnings of lowest income group is to be put in storage and kept available to pay benefits receivable by them at the age of 65 and after. But actually it is being spent like any other tax money and replaced in the treasury by markers bearing interest which is raised by taxation. This interest also may be spent and replaced by markers, or bonds, also bearing interest, and so forth.

Meanwhile, of course, the em ployer is matching each employe's payment, so that by 1949 the Social Security will take six per cent off the top of the nation's private pay roll for employes drawing up to $3,000. And in New York state where a three per cent unemploy-ment tax is paid by the employer, taxes will amount to nine per cent of the gross pay roll in a large area of employment. And also, ir New York and most other states, the employe who qualifies for the regular federal income tax must pay the state tax as well. makes three income taxes for him.

Here is a curious Curious Little Prank little prank, too: ficer, on a salary of $15,000 a year gets an automobile as a prerequiite of his job the use of that car is not reckoned as income, but if a small employe received food instead of wages, the value of that food is reckoned and reported, and he must pay an income tax on it.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE STATE'S PROTECTING ARM Cobb county's young attorney, James V. Carmichael, has a double duty and therefore a doubled opportunity. In the first place, this young man who has conquered physical handicaps and made his own way, is vice chairman of the economy committee in the state legislature. In the second place he is, or eems to me to be, the unofficial leader of the bloc of younger men in the house. There are more than thirty of them.

They respect him personally and they respect his judgment. They believe that within the next eight years he might be a successful candidate for governor.

He and the committee members will do the state a real service if they can conduct the economy inquiry without any hint of the inquisition or without brow-beating of witnesses, more especially the feminine witnesses. There can be the greater service of conducting the inquiry so that the facts ascertained may be given the public without any inflammatory sentiment attached by the committee. The facts they are investigating are published, audited facts and if, and where, there has been waste it has been a product of the system.

Thirdly, there is the very grave danger that in the sincere desire to invoke economy, there will be done serious damage to the real services which the state ought to do. This is the most important consideration. And Mr. Carmichael, as a leader of young men in state politics who look to the future of the state, ought more than anyone else to protect these services. His philosophy of government is not known to me. He is against any new taxation. This hardly can be his philosophy of government in a time when all government has assumed new services. If his philosophy is one of economy and a business administration, none can quarrel with it. At any rate, as a young and able man in politics, already possessed of a following, he has a double duty: to himself and to the members of the house who believe in him.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND OLD Oscar Wilde, the brilliant maker of epigrams, once said: is such a wonderful thing, it is a shame to waste it on babies." Nevertheless, a profligate nature continues to waste it on babies and on children. It always has seemed to me that the two divisions of population to whom the state unquestionably owed a protecting m, were the young and the aged. Neither group can protect itself.

The Welfare Department is being investigated. There has been made the suggestion the child welfare division be greatly reduced in personnel and service. If there are useless political appointees in obs, they should be removed. If there are trained workers they should be retained. In this work there most assuredly should be people who are trained. There are in this state so many heart-breaking stories of mistreated children. There are many cases of actual traffic in babies for adoption and children for adoption which to hear would chill the blood with horror. There are the homes from which come the juvenile court cases, the many and varied cases of "juvenile delinquency." If this work can correct the evils before they reach the court and criminal or unmarried mother stage, they can save the state much money. It would be false economy to strip this department of its key people. It would most emphatically not be humane or economical to replace trained workers with political appointments. The legislature must realize there are people who are worth $3,000. The department which works with children should $3,500 a year. be filled with trained, skilled social workers. They do their job.

I never knew a social service worker who loafed or who did not earn his pay. The legislature ought to protect the children of the state with trained workers. That would be real economy.

GEORGIA'S POSITION Economy is to be desired. It ought to be had. But the legislator must remember that all the pressure groups are pointing at someone else and saying:

"Don't tax me-tax him." If the campaign to slash expenditures gets out of hand it can do very serious harm to the state. As much harm, in fact, as overspending.

Carried to extreme it would, in effect, say: "If Georgia already is not at the bottom in education, let's put her there.

"If Georgia already is not last among the states in health programs let's put her there.

"If Georgia already is not last among the 48 states in caring for her children and her aged, let's put her there." It will be most disastrous if the programs of health, education and human welfare are abandoned or so emasculated they are ineffective and mere empty political departmental shells. There are those, of course, who for political reasons hope the entire program fails. It better will suit their political ambitions in 1940 if the people are badly governed. Their hand is in this fight. All the slappings on the back; all the hieing on, does not come from those desiring merely economy in government. There are other motives. It is not a time for forgetting. Georgia already stands low among the sister states in education, health and welfare.

In the proper effort at economy there ought not to be any losing

COMPLETE MOTOR CAR SERVICE PRIDE OF HARRY SOMMERS

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1939.

PLANT EMPLOYING MORE THAN SIXTY EXPERIENCED MEN

Every Service Required by Auto Owners Is Guaranteed by Sommers.

With nearly 20 years' service and sales experience in the automobile business to point to with pride, Harry Sommers, Inc., is recognized as one of the largest most successful motor car operators in the city.

Since 1924 Mr. Sommers has occupied the large building at 446 Spring street, corner of Hunnicutt street. Including his sales and display rooms and his large, modern service department, the Sommers' plant is among the very largest in the city.

In the sales department of Harry Sommers is represented the complete line of Chrysler products, for which he is distributor. Chrysler and Plymouth cars, the very latest from the big home fac-tories, in various sizes and colors, are shown on the display floor.

However, it is in the complete service department where the Sommers concern takes its greatest pride. In this department more than 60 highly trained expertsmen who have studied especially the Chrysler lines—are engaged. A matter that speaks highly for the concern is that among this large number of employes the average length of service is 12 years. gaged for 17 years. It demonstrates hat when Sommers secures an expert mechanic he holds on to him. D. C. Fuller is service manager, having been with the concern for 17 years.

"It has always been our policy," said Mr. Fuller, "not only to keep engaged the most highly trained experts we could find, not only on Chrysler lines, but on any and all makes of cars. We believe, however, that the finest service can be rendered motorists should be from the concern from whom the car was bought. That's why we emphasize the extra fine rice we render on Chryslers and Plymouths. But there is no make of car that we cannot prac-

ANDY ROSS SHOWS STEERING DEVICE

Demonstrates New Bendix Steering Stabilizer, Sold by Brooks-Shatterly.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON. They didn't believe it.

So, thousands of folks-mostly otorists and automobile men and safety directors-flocked out about week ago to see Andy Ross, the daredevil driver, come flying in a big auto at 70 miles an hour, blow out his tires with bullets fired from guns alongside his car, and quickly bring his car to a stop right in the middle of the road and hardly a jar was felt.

It was a thrilling demonstration

Brooks-Shatterly brought the well-known daredevil race driver, Andy Ross, to Atlanta, and gave a demonstration both on the new Bendix hydraulic steering stabilizer and on Seiberling tubes, handled and sold by the well-known tire and service concern, corner Walton and Spring streets.

Brooks-Shatterly invited all skeptics on Saturday afternoon to the demonstration South Boulevard, just beyond Grant park. There a thousand or more gathered—and there Andy did all the things he advertised he would do—and then some. And he lived to tell all about how it feels to be running 70 miles per hour, have a blowout, even with both wheels on one side, and then out any swerving or skidding off the road, as most material definition of the road. the little stabilizer for two Knocking Down Officer Investigating Driving.

A negro listed as Willie Ham orick, 38, of a Martin street address, was shot to death by police vesterday when, according to Ra-dio Patrolmen J. R. Palmer and V. H. Whitley, he attempted to flee following a scuffle with the officers at Mary and Hubbard streets.

Patrolmen Palmer and Whitley reported they were called to the corner to investigate "a drunk in car." They said Hambrick was in an automobile, which was back-ing up in a reckless manner. Pa-and Mrs. Freeman Lamb, of Cochtrolmen Palmer said the negro struck him, knocking him to the street, and then ran.

Patrolman fired once in the air and when the negro failed to halt, he fired again. Hambrick died of a bullet wound in the head about two hours after being admitted to Grady hospital.

Americans believe. Shall the United States remain strictly neutral until directly threatened or should she pick and strengthen her allies now as a wise preparation? The answer to this question threatens to split American opinion, congress and the administration into two rabidly opposed camps and projects its shadow largest on the 1940 presidential campaign. First big gun in this struggle watched by ittery dictator-ship and democracy alike was fired by Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, assist-ant secretary of the treasury, who resigned as the most effective protest against the Roosevelt policy of taking sides in world rivalries. He thus becomes The Man of the Week.

By The United Press. Long ago, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor demonstrated that he was an independent thinker; a man of direct action. His resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury was but a manifestation of those characteristics. Tipping the beam at 190 pounds and measuring 6 feet 2 inches in height, Taylor walks with the gait of an athlete. He speaks in a soft, well-modulated voice that develops a slight tremolo when he gets into earnest, serious conversation. He had the reputation for being one of the best-dressed men the treasury, favoring grays tweeds. He wears soft-collared shirts, single-breasted suits and moderately form-fitting doublebreasted overcoats. Although he comes from family that rates at the top in the social blue-book, he devoted little of his time to social activi-

A Message from the Mayor...

THE FUTURE BELONGS TO US

YEARS AGO Horace Greeley said "Go West-Young Man". Today, if that great American were living, his admonition would be to Go South.

All over the Southern States we see a great industrial awakening. As great northern industries find the need of expansion or modernization, or the utilization of new processes, their next move is a plant in the South.

Here in Georgia, with its healthful climate, its advantages of soil and mineral wealth, its sensible level-headed people, the opportunities of the future are boundless.

Atlanta, with its metropolitan population of nearly four hundred thousand people, is located in the heart of a progressive section, whose industrial, civic and social advancement will amaze the entire world in the next twenty years.

With our great natural advantages, our progress cannot be denied. We live in a City and State whose natural advantages are already the envy of other sections less fortunate. When great enterprises are seeking a southern distribution center, Atlanta, with its overnight rail access to nearly 15,000,000 people, with its airlines radiating to all points of the compass, and its great banking institutions, which form the financial nerve center of the South, is always the logical choice.

We, ourselves, do not appreciate the real greatness of Atlanta and its wonderful possibilities. Truly the future belongs to us.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Again, I have to begin with yesterday's doings. On arrival at Cornell I went at once to the meeting of the heads of the various women's organizations. There, one of the city merchants, a grocer, a member of the credit organization and a producer, were discussing the consumer-producer-distributor problem from the point of view of its relation to the home and especially to the woman in her capacity as house-wife and buyer for the family. The constantly reappearing question of pressure salesmanship and installment buying also came up for consid-

Of particular interest to me were the various ways suggested by the merchants whereby the cost of purchasing could be reduced to the consumer. For instance, if the housewives gave their orders twice a week and deliveries only had to be made on those days, the cost of many articles could be greatly reduced. If cash were paid, if people returned things less frequently, the merchant's overhead, which is passed on in cost to the consumer, would be less. The housewife would have to be as well organized in her home as if she were running a business.

This same question has often come up in connection with the management of domestic workers in the home. The lack of any real pattern in many households has come to be a real problem which points to the fact that a housewife should be trained, as well as a houseworker. There was no doubt about it that the merchants gave us the same impressions in all their information.

I have seen two interesting exhibits this year, one a rearranged kitchen in a farm house which saves the mother of the family many steps, the other was an exhibit to teach people how to buy textiles of various kinds. An interesting exhibition of historical costumes was put on in the afternoon by Helen Virginia Meyer and we attended a tea given by the Home Economics Club girls and in the evening the master farmer dinner. The citations for the farmers and their wives and the young people who received the 4-A award were, as usual, most inspiring.

This morning I started at 9 o'clock to visit an NYA resident project which is established in connection with the Biggs Memorial State Hospital for Tuberculosis. The youngsters work in every department on maintenance, even in the laboratory and X-ray department. They have related training in their resident center and it looks to me like one of the most interesting projects that I have ever seen anywhere. Three of the girls in the hospital had written to ask me to visit them, so I had an opportunity to see them also. Back at the college, I heard a most interesting talk by Dorothy

Lathrop, who has illustrated and written some very charming books. Later I met with one of Miss Rose's class for a short discussion period. More about this tomorrow. (Copyright, 1939, by The Constitution.)

Try the Modern Treatment Method

By Dr. William Brady.

A pastor who read an observa-tion in this column to the effect that only a few of those whom I had advised as to the modern method of treating prostatic obstruction—transurethral resection—troubled to write later and report their experience for the ben-efit of other sufferers from the same condition, unburdens his conscience by describing his experience. Here it is, and I hope it may be helpful to many pa-tients as well as their physicians:

Having read your article on the modern method of removing the prostate by transurethral or electrosurgical operation, I decided to discard the advice of three other doctors who warned me under no circumstances to submit to it, painting a very dark picture of the dire results and the great danger to which I would expose my-self; of course, they all recom-mended the old way of removing the prostate gland through an external incision I consulted the doctor whom you had suggested to me on my request. After a thorough examination I entered the hospital he designated. On the third day the operation took place. I was fully conscious during it all and followed every move and step with great interest.

I would have been able to leave the hospital two weeks after the operation had it not been for an attack of pleurisy which set in and kept be another week in bed. Though I am in my 74th year I feel like a new men, work all day and every day in the week and sleep soundly all night without

Heirloom Jewelry To Feature Miss Meador's Bridal Attire

WHEN Josephine Meador becomes the bride of Dr. Stephen Barnett VV Jr. next Saturday, the only jewelry she will wear will be an exquisite seed pearl necklace and brooch that belonged originally to her great-aunt, the late Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, of this city. The necklace was given to Mrs. Lowry by her husband, the late Colonel Robert J. Lowry, when, as Miss Emma Markham, she became his bride over 75

The pearls which now belong to Josephine's cousin, Mrs. Emma Lowry Burr, namesake of Mrs. Lowry, was last worn by the former Julia Meador, when she was married to Lieutenant Troup Miller Jr., seven years ago. Another member of the family to wear the necklace is the former Alice May Freeman, Mrs. Burr's sister, who fastened the pearls around her slender neck to first slice of her wedding cake come the bride of Bockover Toy at a June ceremony in 1916.

Another valued heirloom that will complete the bridal attire of next Saturday's bride is an exquisite rose-point lace handker-chief that belongs to Josephine's great-aunt, Mrs. Lelia Lowry Freeman. The kerchief has been carried by brides in the Meador family for several generations and will serve as the "something old" for Josephine's trousseau. For the 'something borrowed" the future Mrs. Barnett will wear the fragile tulle veil worn by her lifelong friend, the former Ida Sadler, when she descended the First Presbyterian church aisle to become the bride of Daniel O'Day.

For "good luck," Josephine will tuck a four-leaf clover in the toe of her dainty satin slipper. The symbol was sent by bride-elect's cousin, Julia Block who attends Mount Vernon Seminary in Washington, D. C., and was found by the college belle on the school campus.

As late as the Gibson Girl era, when the tiny waist was again the style, it has been said that Aunt Sophronia, with the aid of a bed-post, laced herself so tightly that she fainted at the church sociable.

This torture garment is no more. Even the word "corset" is becoming obsolete.

Today, girdles, foundations, step-ins, have taken its place. Stream-lined garments of two-way stretch fabrics allow freedom for breathing and for vigorous action. They are ingeniously cut to youthfully mold and firmly hold the figure with few, if any, stays.

REGENSTEIN'S 67th ANNIVERSARY

Bulldog, Jacket Courtmen Each Have Three Games To Play

It has just come to light, along with additional night games. The streamlined Crackers are going to resort to camouflage on the road this coming season. They have borrowed something from the quail, whose coloring provides a natural blend with the surrounding fields.

The Crackers are going to wear brown uniforms on the road. The brown will correspond to the color of the base paths. And, since they expect to be streaking around the paths and hitting the earth considerably, they are figuring that a brown shape in the dust may be as hard to tag as a partridge on the rise.

Have you ever tried to catch a lizard as it streaked across the ground and suddenly changed color? There was that moment of adjustment to the change which gave the lizard time enough to get away. The lizard, a fast-change artist, is quicker The Crackers, of course, will not change colors. They will stick to brown. It might prove a little confusing at that, especially under lights. Another piece of camouflage may be observed in the Southern league. Joe Engel may trot out the "nine old men" again, disguised as baseball players.

MIGHT AS WELL.

They tell this one on Dr. George Myshrall, whose fondness for bird dogs is such that each year he reserves his vacations for a field trial or two

It seems that Doc sent his prize setter away for trainining and then waited expectantly for the time he could run it in a trial and also hunt behind it in the fields.

Well, Doc didn't run the dog in the trial but he did take it down to Bob Sealey's place in Alabama for a spot of hunting. All the way down he talked proudly

The hunt was on and after about 10 minutes, it was to be noticed that Doc Myrshall's dog was panting like a fat man who has just been chased up three flights of stairs.

The dog obviously wasn't in shape. Doc was blue. His spirits sunk as low as the foundation of the Empire State building. He didn't have very much to say,

Just about then Bob Sealey's dog pointed and one bird was shot down on the covey rise. The Sealey dog re-trieved and Bob asked Doc, "Want your dog to smell the bird?"

"Might as well," came the Doc's voice as from the depths of a well. "I doubt he's ever smelled one before."

SO HE'S LUCKY, HUH?

It is becoming a bit distressing to hear folks keep on in-sisting that Roy Chatham, the left-handed sharpshooter of the Georgia Bulldog basketball team, is lucky.

I have heard it said that certain coaches wouldn't use Chatham because of his somewhat individualistic style of play. Well, I would like to meet the coach who wouldn't use Roy Chatham. Because he either would have some of the best talent in the land or else be a little "teched in the head."

Chatham appears small alongside his angular teammates, but he is no little man by any means. And the portside sharpshooter is one of the fanciest shots seen around these parts in a long time.

Those who think his one-handed shots are lucky might stop Those who think his one-handed shots are lucky might stop to consider that he consistently gets around 10 or more points run in the mud or on the dry, capa game and that many of his southpaw tosses never touch the tured the Santa Susana Stakes by rim. #### OUITE A DEBUT.

It is, come to think of it, quite a debut for quiet Elmer Lampe, the tall, scholarly looking each of the Bulldogs. Elmer came to Georgia with a great record as a coach of basketball in smaller college circles.

And it's hardly necessary to point out how well he is sustaining his reputation. Georgia hadn't beaten Tech since 1935 and Lampe comes along with a new light of cage knowledge, and several six-fceters, and sweeps the 1939 series.

Lampe is one of the most gracious winners I've ever seen. He almost apologized for Georgia's victory over Tech Saturday night, pointing out that the loss of Hughes was a terrific blow to the Jackets.

And I guess that explains why so many Tech men graciously congratulated Lampe on the fine record he's making with the to preserve his power, came up in the stretch and ran Specify down team. You naturally want to see a person of Lampe's stamp to win by a nose in the mile and * * * *

THE PERSONAL TOUCH.

Lampe gets in the old personal touch. That is to say, some favored of the boys were amazed to find him before the Tech game wrapping ankles in the dressing room. He may have been doing it simply to have some thing to do, but it does seem to lend something of the old personal touch and must sit well with the boys.

Elmer Lampe really is setting the pace for the new coaching setup. And it seems to me to be a good omen. The trouble ought to be all over, over there.

trainer, Sam Sobel, was worried 16, at the intermission. that his charge would go stale, but his anxiety was needless. FLAWLESS EXHIBITION. The genial Georgian boxed three ounds against a stablemate, Hippo Hipps, and there was not a flaw in his performance. Ben repeatedly stung his stablemate with a long left jab. The punch, streaking with the speed of an arrow, drew blood from Hipps' face before the initial round was well under way. In the last two stanzas the sinewy Atlantan changed his tactics. He started throwing a long left hook, the punch winging in a semi-circle to Hipps' stubble-chin with the jolt of a hammer. Occasionally Ben let fly with a right cross, but, the Georgian used his right as a blocking weapon.

Ben tipped the scales at 163 at the start of his drill. He is expected to weigh the same against in Atlanta.

The tournament committee is composed of Oscar Brock, physical director, Y. M. C. A.; Virginia Carmichael, WPA recreation supervisor, and J. Lee Harne Jr., director of recreation, city parks department and tournament manager.

LOVE COMES LAST

Nina Is Shot By the Surprise Bandit; Andy Tries In Vain To Locate Laurie

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Life has been very kind to her, Laura Wiley thinks, especially the last two years since Andy Cooper came into it. She likes her work as announcer at BRY and her salary, with her earnings from tiction writing, have enabled ner to take care of her younger sister, Nina, now 21, who is rebellious because heart trouble bars her from manny of the activities of boye and girls of her age. So Laura is disturbed when Andy tells her that Bartley Ford, top-rank New York advertising man, wants to take over the Cooper agency in Newbury and make Andy an important executive. She does not want to leave Newbury and with Andy gone her whole existence would be changed. She believes also that Andy would be doing himself an injustice as his agency is doing well and he would bury his identity in a large organization. She tells him this when they are driving out to the lake with Nina. As they talk on the shore, Nina swims out to a float, there is a cry for help and Andy reaches her almost as soon as a lifeguard. He and Laura hurry her home and to bed, badly worried because of her heart, but she is little the worse for her experience. As Laura is preparing lunch, Nina tells Andy she suddenly wanted to keep on living as he carried her ashore in his arms. He thinks she is suffering from shock but when he leaves she tells Laura she loves Andy. Laura thinks it is only a passing fancy. Andy aranges a dinner party with Ford, Laura and Nina. Nina goes to Andy's office, throws her arms around his neck and earters.

By Edwin Cox Georgian Heads U. S. Delegation To Revise World's Mail Service

James W. Cole Will Arrive in Buenos Aires Next

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—When Deputy Second Assistant Postmaster General James W. Cole, of Georgia, arrives in Buenos Aires late next month as chairman of the United States delegation to the Congress of the Universal Postal Union, he will be participating with every civilized country of the world in revising international mail service.

Organized in Berne, Switzerland, in 1874, Universal Postal Congresses have been held at intervals of five years, this year's congress opening in Buenos Aires on April 1. The object of the union is to fix uniform postage rates, uniform dimensions for the various classes of mail, and devise ways and means for carriage of the mails to and from the various countries of the world.

Cole was named chairman of the United States delegation beinternational postal service, and of mail, both domestic and foreign, as any member of Postmaster

General Farley's staff.

The genial deputy started his career 41 years ago as a railway mail clerk, running between Atlanta and New Orleans, on the Louisville & Nashville.

versity in the same class (1900) will be chairman of a group of three post office department exrector of the division of interna-tional postal service, and Stewart tional postal service, and Stewart M. Weber, assistant director, division of interpretary larger and later "made up" with his girl vision of international postal service. Chairman Cole also will be accompanied by Mme. Armond W. Langley, secretaire du sous-ministre adjoint, who will act as his interpreter, and two other depart-mental technical experts. Although the congress will re-main in session at Buenos Aires about three months, Cole and his party will leave Argentina after a three-week stay.

TEACHERS OF FRENCH WILL MEET SATURDAY

Georgia chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French will hold their third annual session here Saturday at the University of Georgia Extension Center. J. R. Thaxton, president of the chapter, will preside. Highlight of the session will be
